CAUSE AND EFFECT OF PRESENT DEPRESSION AND REMEDY OFFERED

Local Citizen, On Request, Gives Views and Comments
On Momentous Subject Affecting Entire Country—
Scores Prohibition.

Bay St. Louis, Miss., May 26th, 1931.
The Sea Coast Echo.

Dear Mr. Editor:—In reference to my views on the present economic condition, which you asked me to express in writing, as per our conversation I beg herewith to submit them to you.

I do not believe in the prediction of the future prophets we have throughout the land, always predicting that in a short time economic conditions will be cured. Unfortunately for those prophets in the past they have been wrong in every one of their prophecies, so that their present prediction of future economic conditions ought to be given little weight. I believe that every cause has an effect, and without a cause no effect is possible; therefore I do not believe that conditions will right themselves without some cause. In endeavoring to create a cause we must always, in my opinion, analyze the present situation, endeavor to ascertain the cause thereof, and then suggest the cure.

The trouble with the present conditions is that we have appreciated so highly the purchasing value of a dollar that it is impossible for those who became indebted on a depreciated dollar to ever pay back the debt. The debtors on the dollar appreciated to the present standard, and this applies to Governments as well as to people who are heavily indebted.

To illustrate: A farmer who borrowed $5,000 two years ago to invest in a farm, chickens and cows—we will say, purchased his chickens and his cows when eggs were selling for 50c a dozen and milk at 40c a gallon—today he must pay that indebtedness with eggs selling at 10c a dozen and milk at 16c a gallon. His only hope therefore of paying his indebtedness is to provide some means by which he will gather five dozen eggs where he gathered one dozen before, or he must have three gallons of milk for every gallon he needed when he borrowed the money. Of course it is practically impossible to do that. However if he did do it, as he increases the production of eggs and milk, on the well known law of Supply and Demand, he necessarily decreases the price, so that it is impossible for him to make both ends meet, because if he gathered enough eggs and had enough milk to pay his indebtedness on the present value of the dollar he would get the 10c a dozen for his eggs, or the 16c a gallon for his milk. This illustration will apply to every business—the eggs and the milk being taken to localize the illustration.

The remedy certainly is not in decreasing wages, because if we decrease wages we take from the channel of commerce the difference between the present wages and the decreased wage, and again take that much more money out of circulation,—nor is it the absurd suggestion of discharging Government employees to add to the large number of unemployed. The remedy must come from a depreciated dollar.

When we were very prosperous, this country owed approximately Twenty-Six Billion dollars. That was represented by bonds that had a value of Twenty-Six Billion dollars. The money used to purchase these bonds was of a like value. The Banks would place the bonds in their vaults and keep them as a secondary reserve, practically as they keep their cash. The money was out doing the business. On the fundamental law of Supply and Demand, there being more money, or basis of credit, values of all commodities rose and everybody had confidence in values of all commodities, as always occurs on a rising market. In the course of time, however, under a very unwise policy, as I see it, the Government undertook to retire the bonds at a great deal faster than it was wise to do. Income tax was levied in enormous proportions, early payments were required of our creditors, our best customers, thereby destroying their purchasing ability, so that the National indebtedness might be retired at the rate of about a Billion dollars per year. The money to retire these bonds came from all of the tax payers, as well as our best customers, and in a year that billion dollars was taken from the channels of commerce and nothing put in its stead, because as the bonds were paid, the billion dollars were burned, so that in ten years we had destroyed approximately Ten Billion dollars of bonds and had put nothing in their stead which banks must keep as secondary reserve, and under the conceded computation that a dollar is worth seven cents, the business we had virtually destroyed Twenty-Six Billion dollars of circulating medium if we consider the bonds as such, and they were accepted as such of course.

Again, on the well established law of Supply and Demand, there being more money, or basis of credit, the value of the dollar rose, and with it the depreciation of values of commodities, and the business of the country was virtually destroyed.

PLANNING TO ZONE BEACH BUSINESS SECTION ON MISS. GULF COAST

Important Conference Held at Biloxi—United Action Will Bring About Protection Desired—Want Ordinance
That Will Hold.

Bay St. Louis Chamber of Commerce was represented last Thursday afternoon at a conference of representatives from along the Mississippi Gulf Coast, held at Biloxi Chamber of Commerce, when the matter of zoning business sections of the Coast was discussed. Mayor George R. Rea, Mayor Charles Traub, Sr., and others comprised the committee.

The consensus of opinion that it was the desire to zone in a manner that would not bar the present existing business section along the water side of beach roadways, but to limit the scope of territory for such building and to further protect that section of the coast not in the business sections.

Mayor John J. Kennedy, member of the G. O. C. board of directors, presided, and Secretary Ragunin served as secretary. Mr. Kennedy made it plain that no attempt was being made to do away with all commercial activities along the beach front. While all present were heartily in favor of zoning, they thought that some sections of the various municipalities must be set aside for commercial buildings. The spread of these filling stations, hot dog stands, etc., to further sections of the city, is the problem before Biloxi and other municipalities.

Competent lawyers said that the Supreme Court refused to uphold the present state zoning law, which is the model zoning law drawn under the direction of Herbert Hoover, when he was Secretary of Commerce. It has already been upheld in 23 American municipalities.

John L. Heiss, city attorney of Gulfport, led the technical discussion on the present zoning laws. He named chairman of the special committee of city and county attorneys.

Miss was named chairman of the attendance and announced that the committee on zoning should draw up new zoning ordinance, and submit it to the next session of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Association, which will be held at Biloxi, June 1st.

SUSPECTS IN MARTIN CASE BOUND OVER TO GRAND JURY

Art Kiser and Oakley Rials,
Of Brookhaven, Denied
Benefit of Bail at Hearing in Bay St. Louis.

Art Kiser and Oakley Rials of Brookhaven were bound over to await action of the grand jury and denied benefit of bail on charges of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Lum Martin at his home in Standard, the night of May 4, in a preliminary hearing Thursday morning before Justice of the Peace Frank Gutierrez.

Defense attorneys immediately announced that petitions for a habeas corpus hearing would be filed. The next session of the grand jury in Hancock county will convene in September at the regular term of the Circuit Court.

Mrs. Lum Martin, wife of the deceased, and Walter Cuevas were the only witnesses put on the stand by the state. Neither Kiser or Rials testified.

The woman said that she identified the two men by a scar on the left side of Kiser's neck and by blinking actions of Rials' eyes that she noticed the night of the fatal shooting when her husband flashed a light on the two men as they sat on the edge of the porch.

Mrs. Martin testified that she did not see any other person with the two men and that she did not know who shot her husband. The shooting started, the woman said, out in front of the house, and that Martin was shot in the head as he stood on his porch after rushing into the house for his gun. Martin shot one time, she said.

Martin is alleged to have been shot by Kiser and Rials the night of May 4 as the result of a liquor hijacking attempt by the two north Mississippians, it was said. He fell mortally wounded and died about one hour later as he was being taken to the hospital in Gulfport.

Cuevas testified that he had taken the two men to Martin's home about one week before the shooting, and that he was present when Kiser and Rials remarked to Martin that they would return within the next few days for another load of liquor. He identified the two men as the parties escorted to Martin's home.

Mrs. Martin said on the stand that the two men approached her husband the night of the shooting by stating that they were the same parties who had been there a few nights previous.

Much interest was manifested in the preliminary hearing and the circuit court room was packed to capacity. Relatives of Kiser and Rials were present.

CITY WATER CAPACITY DOUBLED

Recent Completion of Water
Reservoir Gives City Added Supply and Fire Protection

Mayor Traub, Sr., Commissioner Ferdinand H. Egloff and Commissioner Sylvan J. Ladner, the latter in charge of water and public utilities in general, have reason to feel proud of their recent accomplishment when the building of an additional water reservoir was completed.

The new reservoir was built adjoining the old one and both combined under one roof of concrete and made to appear as if in one and to a considerable degree makes for the ornamental. The reservoir and its being made part of the older one was planned and designed by City Engineer E. S. Drake who supervised the work, and how well he succeeded is best attested to by the work itself and comment from authoritative sources.

Contractors were Favre & Osbourne, Joseph L. Favre and Edward Osbourne, both of this city. They had ninety days in which to build the structure, but did it in less than sixty days, even though the work was delayed waiting arrival of the steel reinforcement that went into this work of no small magnitude. The tanks hold 162,000 gallons and cost all complete, including concrete roof for two reservoirs, $3,128,000. The price is considered very reasonable, the city taking advantage of a time when material is low and labor plentiful and cheap. The old tank holds 125,000 gallons water. Thus there is in reserve all the time a total of 287,000 gallons water. This is pumped to the tower and gives additional pressure. In the event of fire there is not only a surplus water but an equal amount of pressure.

It must be said to the city's credit, this work was accomplished without incurring the issuance of additional bonds for the borrowing of any money. Funds were taken from the water work receipts, even though the present administration has laid some $10,000 worth of pipes and last year reduced the water rental, an example of constructive economy.

City's waterworks in charge of Eugene Jones by day and Theodore Tidbury by night, two men who have evidenced their competency by giving their trust vigilant and dependable attention.

TWO CHARGED WITH BURGLARY AT COLLEGE AND G. HORTON BOAT

Bay St. Louis Men Give $250
Bond Each to Appear for Trial Saturday Morning.

Roger Givens and Alfred Besancon, Jr., charged with burglary and bond of $250 each to appear Saturday morning before Judge Frank Gutierrez on a charge of burglary.

Deputy Sheriff Mitchell made out the affidavit charging both men separately with taking a victrola, records, linen, chinaware and other belongings including a battery from a boat belonging to George S. Horton, while in harbor. Also on a charge with taking provisions from the store room of St. Stanislaus College some time back. The men were placed under arrest by Deputy Mitchell and City Officer A. R. Saucier.

The recent robbery at the college is considerable, sacks and containers in wholesale being carted away. The lock on the store room was wrenched off and from tracks of a truck it was evident the provisions had been carried away in heavy lots.

C. MONTI ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY

Well-Known Resident of Bay St. Louis Seeks Nomination at August
Primaries.

Claud Monti, well-known resident of this city and business man for many years, is formally announced in the county paper this week as a candidate for sheriff and tax-collector of Hancock county.

Mr. Monti comes from a well-known and long-established family of this section and he is practically known over every nook of Hancock county. He numbers his friends and acquaintances in every section, in fact, no one is better known in Hancock than he.

Mr. Monti was a candidate in the last race for sheriff and so well was his candidacy received and generally favored that he has been urged to again make the race. In acquiescing to this request, he decided to make the race and reports that the outlook is most encouraging.

He has been in business in this city practically all his adult life and has contributed his share in the burdens of both city and county. He is experienced, his integrity unquestioned and if elected he will serve the trust not only faithfully but will assume the responsibility fully realizing the importance and exactitude demanded in the discharge of the duties.

In announcing his candidacy in the newspaper, Mr. Monti does so not only to establish his candidacy, but to inform the public fully and definitely and says that in time he hopes to see one and all the voters as far as humanly possible. He feels confident of success, he says, and solicits the vote and influence of all who will do so in behalf of his candidacy.

OYSTER PRODUCTION FOR NEXT SEASON PROMISES TO BE BEST IN 15 YEARS

70,000 Barrels Shells Planted by Oyster Commission To Create New Reef Three Miles off Waveland—Commission Represented Locally by R. N. Blaize.

Favorable progress was apparent Thursday in the planting of 70,000 barrels of oyster shells to create a new reef three miles off shore from Waveland, lying west of Square Hancock reef and approximately six miles northwest of Pass Marianne light, according to reports of an inspection by the Mississippi seafood commission, whose members visited the mile-square area and a special trip of the seafood patrol boat Althea Vardaman.

Planting of the 70,000 barrels of shells, now in progress will be completed about the middle of June, should weather permit, and the reef will have an estimated yield of 150,000 barrels of oysters a year or two after, according to Louis Stachling, chief inspector for the commission, who headed the inspection tour. The motor tugs Carl F. Sarah Kennedy, and Miona, all of Biloxi, were engaged in dumping shells taken from the huge shell pile at the wharf of the Pacific Christian plant of the Dunbar-Ducate company while the schooners Alfred and Europe were reported repairing at Biloxi after a rough half hour with a severe 70-mile squall Wednesday noon.

Members of the state commission making the inspection trip were Dr. J. H. Spence, Pass Christian, president Louis Hahn, Biloxi; Gus Roberts, Orange Grove, Jackson County; H. Minor Russell, Ocean Springs, and R. N. Blaize, Bay St. Louis. W. J. Grant, Biloxi secretary of the commission, also made the trip.

Members of the crew of the patrol boat were Captain John Foremich, master; Napoleon Neto, engineer, and August Fayolles, cook.

J. D. Chopick, Pittsburgh capitalist with a Gulf Coast home at Pass Christian, was among the guests of the commission.

Prediction that the approaching oyster season, to open September 1 for saw oysters and November 1 for factory dredging, will be the best in 15 years, was made by Dr. Spence, president of the commission.

At a meeting of the local order of St. Margaret's Daughters, Our Lady of the Gulf Circle, No. 56, the annual report was read and received.

This band of women work in and out of season for good of both humanity and community, regardless of condition, creed or color. How well it has worked the past twelve-month period is best and fully told in the report, a careful reading of which is well worth while.

SEEKING FOR MINERAL PRODUCTS

THE HERCULES Sulphur Exploration Corporation has made all preliminary preparations to begin drilling to a depth of 5000 feet if necessary in an effort to discover sulphur, oil or gas near McHenry in Stone county. In a former test the drill penetrated a four-inch vein of sulphur at 1000 feet but the well was abandoned at 1087 feet as the rig was inadequate for a well of greater depth. The men who have put their money into the project are confident that they will be successful in discovering one or all the minerals sought.

JOHN H. LANG-FOR REPRESENTATIVE

With no desire or thought of meddling in Harrison county politics, The Echo believes the Democrats over there would do the right thing if they chose our venerable friend John H. Lang as one of Harrison's representatives in the next legislature. His name has been mentioned frequently in connection with the position and if he entered the race we believe his election would be assured.

PURGING PENSION ROLLS NEXT.

We are in hearty agreement with the Hattiesburg American when it says: "Pension rolls should be purged ruthlessly until only the actual veterans of the Civil War, and widows of veterans who married before 1875, are still on the lists." It is a matter of common knowledge that in some counties there are men and women who are not entitled to share in the distribution of the State's pension funds, and their names should be stricken from the rolls.

CENSUS FIGURES IN MISSISSIPPI

The bureau of census has announced that according to the returns received, there were 25,728 marriages performed in Mississippi during 1930 as compared with 31,495 in 1929. During 1930 there were 2736 divorces granted in the State as compared with 3159 in 1929. Can we attribute the falling off in both marriages and divorces last year to "the depression?" We do not doubt it had something to do with it.

SKIDS HAVE BEEN GREASED

And now Tennessee's governor is up against threats of removal from his high office—and from all reports coming out of Nashville it looks as if the skids have been greased for his speedy ousting from the executive mansion. His connection with the Lea-Caldwell gang of bank wreckers has been pretty well established after a legislative committee investigation which has probed deep into the matter.

"If you want another session you must sign on the dotted line," says Theodore, and "a substantial majority of the legislators are saying: 'We'll be damned if we do.'"

Dr. H. Robert Welti, a Swiss economist has solved the reason for the drop in stocks. He says that men in the United States are wasting time and admiration upon women. "A too highly developed cult of the feminine is resulting in lack of creation, constructive power," is the way he puts it.

The death sentence of two negroes in Washington county has been commuted to life imprisonment by Governor Bilbo. The negroes were to have been hung at Greenville last Monday and last minute executive clemency was extended them only a few hours before the time set for their execution.

It is reported from Jackson that evidence has been secured by government officials which insures the indictment of the murderers of H. L. Everett, deputy prohibition agent, in Simpson county about four weeks ago. The federal grand jury is now in special session at Jackson and it is expected that the indictments will be announced in the course of the next day or two.

Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior department during the Harding administration, has announced that he will appeal his conviction to the United States supreme court. It was proven to the satisfaction of a jury in the District of Columbia appeals court that the former cabinet officer accepted $100,000 as a bribe from Edward L. Doheney, millionaire oil man, for which he was given a year's prison sentence and a $100,000 fine.

Nearly five thousand carloads of strawberries have been shipped from Hammond, La., during the past two months. We have seen no statement so far as to the amount of money received by the berry growers, but it certainly runs up into the millions, and gives assurance that there will be a large increase in acreage to be planted next season. In the meantime our Gulf Coast country, far better suited to profitable growing of the fruit than the Hammond district, does not seem to wake up to the opportunity and advantage possessed for the development of an agricultural industry that would bring wealth, prosperity and happiness to its people.

HERBERT'S TROUBLES

PRESIDENT HOOVER has come out flat-footed against calling an extra session of congress, nor do we blame him for so doing. He realizes that he has a lot to fear from senators and representatives belonging to his own party who have shown that they are not in sympathy with the administration, and are more than apt to vote with the Democratic minority. When the regular session opens in December Herbert's troubles will have just begun, as the margin of strength between the two parties will be so narrow it is a certainty that the Democrats with the aid of Independent Republicans it is a foregone conclusion he will face a predicament never before faced by a president.

COURT TO RENDER DECISION.

The appeal of Rush H. Knox, former attorney general, who was given a ten-day jail sentence by Circuit Judge Potter on a charge of contempt of court, was argued in the supreme court last Monday. The offense committed by Knox was in furnishing to the sheriff of Hinds county a list of names of men he wished summoned as jurors in the case wherein he was charged with official malfeasance and misfeasance after his acquittal by the State senate in his trial for impeachment. It is probable that the high court will render its decision in about two weeks, and from a layman's viewpoint it will not be other than against the already disgraced ex-official who has the nerve to be going over the State and asking re-election to the job from which he resigned after charges of impeachment had been preferred against him.

HOOVER PANIC

Hon. Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national committee, at a victory dinner in Baltimore a few nights since, referred to "the harmful optimism of the cabinet" in "the Hoover panic" and Republican tariff policies, by saying: "I should like to give the Hoover administration and its spokesmen credit for real progress. Within the last few weeks they have come to admit two things—first that there is a business depression, as they phrase it—I call it a Hoover panic—and, second, that instead of only two or three millions of unemployed, as was persistently claimed over a period of many months there are more than six million unemployed today. It is progress to have finally an admission of basic facts, because obviously until facts are admitted there can be no hope of correction." Now let Herbert laugh that off!

PENITENTIARY INVESTIGATION.

It looks as if Mrs. W. A. Montgomery, prison trustee for the middle district was not wrong in the charges which she made against Jim Williamson, superintendent of the State penitentiary, inasmuch as trustee Allen Rawls has stated that he is heartily in favor of an investigation of the management of the big penal institution. If it should be proven convicts have been the victims of brutal treatment at the hands of either the superintendent or any of his underlings they should be summarily discharged, one and all. Superintendent Williamson assumed a very cocky air and attempted to make little of Mrs. Montgomery's charges when they were first made public, but he will probably assume a more serious attitude now that a full investigation is to be made.

MISSISSIPPI'S NEXT GOVERNOR

The Echo believes that the man elected as governor of Mississippi next November will be the one best qualified for the job, because he will be the choice of a majority of the State's patriotic electorate, and he will not be the one who based his claims for the high office because he belonged to this or that political faction. Having seen their great and beloved Commonwealth almost wrecked and torn asunder during the past decade by warring factionalism, the voters have determined to put their seal of disapproval on every office seeker who seeks election solely because of his allegiance to any particular group of politicians.

CHEAP POLITICIANS

"Cheap Politicians" is a contradiction in terms. This species is really a very expensive luxury for the taxpaying citizens to maintain. Exchange. Don't Mississippians know that to be gospel truth. They have learned it by years of experience, but the question is will they profit by their knowledge of that fact. There are a whole lot of "cheap politicians" now candidates in our State for all offices from governor down to constable and we do not doubt but what some of them will be nominated just as they have been in the past.

POPPY DAY

Every cent you paid for a poppy last Saturday will go to help disabled World War veterans in Mississippi, not a penny of it going out of the State. The annual sale of poppies is sponsored by the American Legion posts, and as the years roll on observance of the day will be more marked, for memory of the soldiers who died "in Flanders fields where poppies grow" can never be dimmed so long as a grateful and patriotic heart continues to beat in the breast of Americans.

NOT IN BAY ST. LOUIS, WE HOPE

Good letterheads make a favorable impression, yet there are men in Yazoo City who are willing to write their letters on scraps of paper—Yazoo Sentinel. And put them in envelopes bearing a corner card impressed by a rubber stamp. Such business (?) men are found in nearly every town.

A Brazilian scientist is credited with having discovered an effective anti-toxin for the bite of the deadliest of snakes, which leads one of our brother editors to express the opinion that some day science may find an antidote for bottle whiskey. Maybe so, but we doubt it.

CURRENT COMMENT

For The Sea Coast Echo

CONGRESS will oppose the proposed plan of military reorganization which contemplates abandoning many army posts. Most representatives will be influenced solely by what they believe to be the best interests of the country. Considering human nature, however, some weight will be given to the fact that the folks in Soldierville will not vote for Congressman Hoozies, if Congressman Hoozies votes to move the army post out of Soldierville.

SUPPLY BACK TO NORMAL

The supply of odd jobs for girls is reported to be normal again. Most parents find that the great difficulty lies in getting girls to take a normal attitude toward odd jobs, particularly those of the household.

SAFE AT 72.

A former Governor of Michigan has adopted his secretary as his daughter. He says: "She has achieved all she has done without learning to use lipstick or rouge, or to smoke or drink, or to swerve." The honor was not misplaced, but the lady's new parent is 72, and out of politics. If he were younger and still in the game, he would take no chances of having to run on an anti-lipstick platform.

FOR WOODEN NUTMEG.

Connecticut votes for a referendum on the Eighteenth Amendment. It seems as though nutmeg used to be an ingredient of a potent pre-lunch drink and Connecticut has been accused of making wooden nutmegs. Her wet stand may indicate simply a desire to restore a market from which the bottom has dropped.

MEMORY WILL NOT CRUMBLE.

David Belasco is dead at 77. His name as a producer of plays is a household word. He will be missed by the millions whose entertainment was promoted by his genius. It was David Belasco's request that the actors in his theatre be kept in ignorance of his death until the play was over. Monuments will crumble, but the continuing play will remain to perpetuate his memory.

EARTH'S SURFACE.

Archaeologists excavating in Egypt have uncovered temples and walls which throw new light on the ancient civilization that flourished along the Nile. The surface of the earth is pretty well known, especially in view of late airplane surveys, but what lies below the surface remains for the most part an undiscovered country. Investigation is made difficult by reason of the fact that every road or building erected by man seals just that area against digging, and as to the open spaces, inspection is limited to the depth of the deepest mine. We know so much about the interior of the earth as the fly which leaves its microscopic foot prints on the tub of butter.

OFFSETTING HARD TIMES.

The Department of Commerce speaks well of installment payments as a means of offsetting the effects of hard times. Anyone two years in arrears on his subscription to The Echo is cordially invited to pay up for one.

HERE'S THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

Aristide Briand, beaten at the French polls, goes right ahead with his plans for an industrially united Europe and a more prosperous France. A smaller man would have retired to the bath of the Riviera, or taken to writing memoirs. To his more profound achievements he has added that of being a good loser.

Mixture of Religion and Politics Depreciated.

The Southern Baptist convention, in session at Birmingham last week, pledged itself to seek the defeat of any political candidate, national or State, and irrespective of party label, opposed to the present prohibition law and who does not openly support that law.

The convention by an unanimous vote endorsed a resolution which reads as follows:

"We declare our intention and purpose not to support for president of the United States, senator, representative, governor, or other officer of high and responsible position any candidate who is hostile to or does not openly and frankly support our present prohibition laws, but to seek the defeat of any such candidate, no matter what party label he may bear."

Just how far such a resolution will control public effect on the voting of the majority of our Baptist friends remains to be seen; but we are inclined to believe there will be very few strictly party adherents who will regard the resolution as binding upon them when election day rolls around. The mixture of religion and politics at any time is to be deprecated, and past experience has demonstrated that the cause of religion and the country suffered irreparable injury when over-zealous church leaders have attempted to meddle in political campaigns. A most striking instance of the correctness of this view is what happened in the last national campaign when the Democratic nominee for president was opposed by religious bigots and hypocrites simply on the grounds that he chose to worship God contrary to the tenets and forms they were doing the same thing. The result was strife and enmity being aroused in every community among citizens who had lived together in peace and harmony and a misfit was put into the White House and to whose administration is directly traceable all the ills from which our country has suffered for the past three years.

The two major political parties will declare in their platforms next year the question of prohibition is not a main issue in the presidential

VIEWS OF OUR NEWS

By Chicagoan

Chicago, Ill., May 26th.—Came in my mail last week, a letter from a young lady at that asking that I comment on what I read in the Sea Coast Echo over television. How much better off I am that television is not yet generally available! That young lady may still have some regard for me.

I suppose it will be only a few years before all a person has to do is turn a dial to see everything that is going on in Bay St. Louis and vicinity. But that time is not here yet. So those of us who reside at a distance from the old town will continue to watch for the arrival of the Sea Coast Echo each week.

Now by the means of last week's paper, I saw sweet little daughters cooing and laughing in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Seafide and Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Sylvester. And the little ones broadcast a bit now and then. I know, in a little while they'll begin to talk a language that more people can understand, starting with such words as "Da-Da," of course. Then in just a few more short years, they'll be gazing back on days that now are yet to come. They'll know more then, but they're probably as able right now to explain what it's all about as are some of the rest of us whose lives have covered a much longer span. But the happy parents are already planning for those futures and their plans are going to do a lot toward determining the careers of the new arrivals.

And all week, there have been smiles on the faces of the Managers of the local "Piggly Wiggly" and the Coast Service Stores as well as on those of other advertisers. They informed the public of the goods they have on hand, and of the low prices for which they would sell them. They are glad because they have made their customers happy, and because the sales sheets for the past week show how wise an investment is advertising, when a medium like the Echo is used.

Now please don't waste your good time telling me what is the matter with that drolful looking fellow who is sunning himself on the steps of his store down the street a piece from the Echo office. I see him there, whistling on a old stick and spitting tobacco juice at the middle of the street, only to have it fall on the sidewalk instead, there to decorate the entrance to his establishment. The gentleman will sit on his steps until his earthly course has been run. And the last sound he utters will be complaint regarding the people who did not "trade at home." The trouble with him is that he never made the public "feel at home." A consistent program of advertising in the Echo would teach the people that they are as welcome in his store as in those conducted by more aggressive firms.

The story in last week's Echo shows that some men have not developed the patience of Job, or of a business man or farmer worrying through the depression, or even of the fisherman who waits for a bite. So to hurry the coming of wealth along, they appropriated property from the Simmons host last winter. If Luc and Johnson are guilty as they have confessed they are, I fear that what I see in a long view ahead of them . . . not a wait for wealth, but one for freedom.

Exquisite are the pleasures to be found in books which contain the noble thoughts and sentiments of the fine minds of the world. And well is this known to the students of S. J. A. whose library was recently improved by a gift from Mrs. C. Week. "A book of verses underneath the bough, a loaf of bread, a jug of wine . . . Oh, Oh! Latter-day legislation has corrected Omar; so the content of that jug is now 'grape juice.' But the lawmakers have done nothing to mar the beauty of the Rubaiyat and other good books read by the brilliant young folks at S. J. A."

My thanks to the very few who have kindly written me, stating that they are anxious to hear me read from the Echo over the radio. You are helping more than you know. Radio time is very expensive. The stations will not devote any of it to a broadcast until they are convinced that there is a demand for a certain program.

campaign, and in that event our Baptist friends will find that their resolution has not had the desired effect. To this day, as in the past, voters are guided by existing laws, ballots by the principles and policies of the parties to which they owe allegiance and not by resolutions of a Baptist convention.

The Conquering Spirit

The true American spirit that will not be downed is what led us into those wars from which we came forth the victors. Because everything has a price, and victory perhaps the greatest of all, we lost thousands of men who fought our cause. It is to them that we go on Memorial Day bearing flowers as tribute. ## BETTER MEALS and you need not stay at home to cook them

Fifteen minutes of your time is all that is required to prepare the daintiest or heaviest meal when an electric range does the work. Set the automatic controls and the hardest part is done. The meal cooks itself, without watching on your part. The time usually spent in the kitchen usually tending the cookstove can be used in shopping or playing. Then, too, electric cookery is cleaner, cooler, more convenient and economical. That is why it is the better way.

It is now very easy to own an electric range and be certain of better meals and more leisure. We have at present a plan new Westinghouse or Hotpoint Automatic Electric Range on new Westinghouse or Hotpoint Automatic Electric range on such reasonable terms that it will not disturb your family budget. It will pay you to see our display of ranges or ask for a man to call and give you details of the sale. Ask us for prices and special terms. Ask about our special rate for cooking by wire.

Remember, if you are doing the work that electric appliance can do, you are working for a few cents a day.

COMMENT ON SPORTS BY SHERIDAN

BIG LEAGUE BLOW UPS
ATHLETICS GET GOING
RUNAWAY IN AMERICAN
NATIONAL RACE BALANCED
TILDEN WINS
NO FOUL AT CLEVELAND

As the month of May proceeded on its way there were startling blowups in the big leagues, as Cleveland lost 14 of its 17 games and the Chicago Cubs, in the National, dropped from first place with a dull thud, as the squad won only five of its first fourteen contests. Offsetting these disasters comes the bright showing of Connie Mack's Athletics, who rode from sixth to first place, on the crest of a winning streak that won 15 out of 16 games.

The National League promises the more balanced race as the figures for the first three weeks of May are studied. Four teams bettered the over record, the Philadelphia Phillies over victories and defeats. Leading the march was New York, with 9 won and 4 lost, moving from third to second place. First place, held by the Cardinals, remained theirs by virtue of 8 out of 12. Boston, with 7 won and 6, and Brooklyn, with 9 out of 16, were the others to get more than half their games.

Over in the American League the present signs point to a three-cornered scramble near the top, with Washington and New York being the runners-up to Philadelphia, which seems to be playing ball like one would expect world's champions to play it. It is still a question whether the elephants will be able to get a commanding lead over these two adversaries, but all three indicated superior strength to the rest of the field during the first three weeks of May.

Only three American league teams did better than break even and 1 lost. Philadelphia's record of 15 won and 1 lost has been mentioned. New York copped 10 out of 14 and the Senators got by with 11 out of 18. From there on it was a sad picture, with the once leading Clevelanders setting the dizzy decline, dropping 14 out of 17 starts. Detroit won only 9 out of 20, Boston 8 out of 19, Chicago 6 out of 17, and St. Louis winning 6 out of 15.

Omitting guessing what the next month will bring forth we call attention to what happened in May, and the reader can make his own forecasts. In the American League there was 12½ games difference between the play of Philadelphia and that of Cleveland, the best and the worst for three weeks. In the National League, where the going seems to be tighter, the Giants, who played best, managed to gain only 6 games on the tail-enders at Cincinnati.

If anybody had an idea that Vincent Richards was a better professional tennis player than the old master, William T. Tilden, a new thought ought to be forthcoming, following the decisive victory of Big Bill, who won the first three of the five matches played by the two men to settle the issue. Tilden won nine of the 13 sets played in the three contests, and demonstrated his superiority. Richards made his best showing in the second contest, played at Boston, where the point score was 121 for Tilden and 115 for Richards, who won two sets in a five set match. Even here, however, Tilden's racket was the strongest at almost every point, gaining points with fast service and vicious backhand smashes.

It begins to look like a no-foul rule will be in force when Stribling and Schmeling mix it up at Cleveland, where the boxing commission has announced that the battle will not be decided on a foul. A new rule, under consideration, would take from the man who strikes a blow seriously foul his entire share of the gate receipts and to take from the victim one-half of his money. This seems unjust, if the victim is clearly not culpable. However, if boxing is to get back in his own something must be done to prevent another Schmeling-Sharkey fiasco.

It may be that what boxing needs is what C. C. Taylor, member of the Missouri boxing commission, says, "guts to get in the ring" with a man known to be tough. He declares that the boxing prima donnas want too many seturs and exaggerate their rawing power at the gate. Says Taylor: "The epidemic of fouling which descended upon the game in 1930 made the public suspicious. Only wise, clean promotion now can instill confidence in the fan that he is not being cheated."

CAUSE AND EFFECT OF PRESENT DEPRESSION AND REMEDY OFFERED

dence in the value of anything, with the consequences that we all know too well as they exist today.

If we recognize this evil, and the cause in part, then the remedy must be the reduction of the purchasing power of the dollar, and that must be done on the same fundamental law of Supply and Demand. In my opinion that could be done in a number of ways, either one, or all, of which must come from Legislative enactment. The most feasible plan, as I see it, would be for this Government to quit the absurd policy of borrowing approximately a Billion Dollars every ninety to one hundred and twenty days. The effect of that is to keep the money moving from the Banks to the Federal Treasury and back, and to keep the money in the channels of commerce. Instead of that policy why not re-finance ourselves, sell bonds to be retired within thirty years or longer and to be retired in no greater amount than One Half Billion dollars per year. By that method we would put the National Treasury about Three Billion Dollars into bonds that banks could hold as secondary reserve and the money paid out therefor would be circulating in the channels of commerce.

Again, to cure the present disaster it is my opinion that this country should discontinue the payment of the National Debt, if necessary, 20 to 25 years or longer from now. The money realized from these bonds should be used for the following purposes:

1st. Reduce the income tax for the next two years to a very low level; thereby enabling those who had earnings to employ all of it in paying their business and restoring their business.

2nd. Pay the balance of the Soldiers Bonus (this is an indebtedness which we owe and I can't see that it makes any difference whether we pay it now or later).

3rd. Invite our friends on the other side who owe us so much money to discuss (not the payment of their indebtedness because that has been settled), either a prolongation of their indebtedness or a moratorium for say three years. That would enable the European countries who are indebted to us not only to recoup their wealth, but would give them money with which to purchase our goods; they are our best customers; they are the customers who ultimately make our prosperity by buying our surplus, and if we give them a breathing spell in the payment of their indebtedness it is certain, in my opinion, that they will again become our best customers.

4th. While everyone may not be in accord with me on this suggestion, yet I believe it is one that would help considerably. Before we submit to the people the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, why not amend the Volstead act to permit the sale of beer containing not over 4 per cent alcohol. That can be done under the Constitution, because the Supreme Court of the United States has held that Congress was the sole judge of what quantity of alcohol was intoxicating. If we did that the approximately Two Billion Dollars which is in the paper is the total of prohibition per year, would be used in a business that is legitimized by Congress, and of course would pay, as it always has done, a very heavy tax, benefiting the Central Government and injuring no one but the boot-leggers.

Of course this last suggestion will not meet universal approval and could be left out of the equation entirely, though in my opinion, it is a very valuable suggestion.

ANSWERS TO SUGGESTED OBJECTIONS TO THE FOREGOING:

(a) It has been suggested to me by a prominent statesman that the objection to inviting our European debtors to discuss a moratorium would be that they might then want us to release them from their indebtedness. That, to me is absurd. The debt has been fixed, the obligation is contractual one and has been well settled in the minds of both parties. We would invite our friends on the other side to a discussion limited solely to whether they should have a moratorium for two or three years. In other words, we would offer them a moratorium for a period of time, which they would refuse to ask for greater things, then it would be just as plausible to tell them "no", then, as it has been to all of the suggestions made for cutting their indebtedness heretofore, but I don't doubt that they would readily accept the moratorium for the period for which we would grant it, it is just as absurd to say that when you offer an extension of payment to a creditor that he is going to refuse it and then ask you to cancel the indebtedness—that argument might be alright where the indebtedness has not been fixed by a treaty or contract.

(b) The suggestion has been made that if we offer for sale say Fifteen Billion Dollars of bonds that they would have to be sold at a discount. I can't agree with that suggestion. Of course if they were all offered at one time that might be the case, but if they were sold in small lots, say 3½ per cent interest, the bonds to be exempt from all taxes, state and otherwise, and were offered intelligently on the market it is my opinion that they would be readily absorbed. However, if I am wrong in this, which I believe is the objection in procedure, then the Federal Reserve Banks should loan to any member bank as much as 50 per cent of the value of the new bonds, at a rate of interest not to exceed 4 per cent and not to be under the amount that the bonds bear. Certain it is that the conditions because that would be equivalent to cash to any bank, as long as it did not loan the money the bank holding them might keep them in their vault drawing 3½ per cent, if they ever needed the money.

they could borrow it from the Federal Reserve Banks. Of course I understand that some will say that this is not proper financing and is not sound. I fail to see the weight of that suggestion. If there is meant by that by loaning on Government bonds the Federal Reserve Bank might become embarrassed, the answer to that is that they could only become embarrassed if the Government bonds lost their value, and if they do lose their value then of course the Country is "busted," and if the Country goes "busted" then you would not even need a Federal Reserve Bank. In other words, you can't hurt the Bank unless the Government becomes insolvent, the tail never wags the dog. If the Government became insolvent, the Federal Reserve bank would be of no use, just like the dead dog, it does not need its tail.

(c) It has been suggested that the conditions that I am dealing with here are world wide and not only local to America. That is true, but they are of America's making. We have more than 65 per cent of the gold of the world. If we reestablished the prosperity of this government would be reestablished in Europe, if we give our friends in Europe a moratorium of two or three years we immediately re-establish their prosperity.

(d) Under the suggestion that we modify the Volstead act it will be said that the door is left open to the bar rooms. I don't mean that by any means. By modifying the Volstead act, as above suggested, liquor could only be sold in the states that permitted it, and it should be provided that that liquor could only be sold by or through the Government in the states where they desired it, and then only to be drunk in homes, restaurants or hotels.

I want you to understand that the figures given above are not accurate, but they are approximately so; however their accuracy or inaccuracy does not take any weight from the argument in support of the suggestions above made, on the contrary, the more accurate the figures the more certain and plausible will be the argument.

Of course there are many other suggestions that could be made along these lines, but those are the main suggestions as they occur to me, and in my opinion unless some such suggestions are adopted and enacted into law, we will just have to wait many months before things can right themselves, and they will not be righted without many failures, and broken hearts, to say nothing of greatly impoverishing the entire country.

I am one who does not agree with the policy that the main object of Government is to pay its debts within a limited time at the expense of ruining the body politic and its subjects, it is my idea that the purpose of Government is rather to promote the happiness of its subjects.

Yours truly,
W. J. GEX.

ST. STANISLAUS ALUMNI DAY SUNDAY

The St. Stanislaus Alumni will have a reunion here on Sunday, May 31. About 150 former graduates are expected to come on the excursion from New Orleans and other points in Louisiana.

There will be a special mass for the Alumni at 10:30 at Our Lady of the Gulf parish church. At 12 o'clock the meeting of the Alumni will be held when the election of officers for the year will take place and the fifty candidates of this year's class will be admitted.

At 1:30 o'clock the banquet will be held and after the banquet the Alumni baseball team will play a team selected from the St. Stanislaus student body.

COLLEGE BAND AT WAVELAND GRADUATION.

Six pupils graduated from the eighth grade at the Waveland school, four girls and two boys. The college band was called upon for entertainment before the Commencement Exercises. Among the selections played by the band were: "Serenade," "Hurt," "Heartaches," "The Waltz You Saved For Me," "Sweet, Jenny Love," and a number of others. Each piece was heavily applauded, the band having just returned from playing over station WSMB, at New Orleans, and were in "form." The members of the band are: Fred Swartz, saxophone; Marion Verlander, trumpet; Robert Labry, trumpet; Dick Gogget, trombone; Henry Gasque, banjo; James Grevenberg, saxophone; Dominick Alaimo, saxophone; Richard Lea, bass; H. Guenard, drums, and B. Dufaut, piano. Professor Elmer J. Smith, instructor of the band, due to a misfortune of his flat tires, could not accompany his band but they kept perfect time in spite of this mishap. The band will play again next Saturday, which is Memorial Day.

EXCITING DAY FOR SENIORS.

The Seniors spent an exciting day Saturday when the photographer arrived from New Orleans to take their pictures. The cap and gown made the seniors look splendid, and Mr. Harvey, the photographer, complimented the boys very much. A great part of the evening was spent taking the pictures but the camera survived the ordeal. The Seniors are awaiting anxiously for the proofs.

"S" CLUB ORGANIZED.

Under Coach Perkins' direction an "S" Club has been organized at St. Stanislaus College. The officers elected were as follows: Ignatius Colatta, president; Luke Sancier, vice-president; Dominick Genard Secretary; Robert Camors, treasurer. Any boy who has made a varsity letter at Stanislaus in a major sport is eligible to become a member of the "S" club. The main purpose of the club is to promote athletics at St. Stanislaus.

The letter men in basket ball for the past season were awarded their sweaters this week. This is the first basket ball letter given in quite a while due to the fact that the basket ball season has culminated in a wonderful trip to Chicago to compete in the National Catholic Tournament. The award this year was a pretty scarlet coat sweater, trimmed in black. The boys receiving the basket ball letter were:

Colotta, Sancier, Artigues, Ducasa, Maurig, Bud Masterson, Bill Masterson and Kidd.

SODALITY PICNIC AT LAKESHORE.

Thursday May 21 the Sodality went to Lakeshore for a good picnic. Four trucks, loaded with laughing, shouting boys, left the college at intervals between eight and eight thirty and by nine thirty all were either playing ball, croquet, their favorite fishing holes, or exploring unforsaken places. While a few remained around the camp exchanging stories and getting tanned.

After eating their fill of delicious picnic food, ice-cream, and pop for dinner they did as they pleased until five fifteen. Then they ate some more and hauled freight for the good "ole" college.

The memories of another picnic are among the tales of our professional tale tellers.

WE WONDER WHY—

Foster is going to laugh at Falchetto? J. Lilley went fishing in a ditch? A. Kidd and J. Dam are graceful blood tennis stars? Brother Conrad's team is so often at the short end of the score? Hayden has developed a fondness for convent in Jeanerette? Leblanc's picture was taken last? Luke was in his glory Thursday? Seniors are so happy this week? "Wolfgang" and "Chauncy" could not sleep Saturday night? How many neckties bought from a certain girl at the penny party Sunday afternoon? Ladner says he is "supposed" to graduate? All the seniors "love" book reports. Lappeyrouille can't play tennis?

Matherne was mistaken for Archie? Doggett pretended to be epileptic Sunday.

GULF COAST SODALITY UNION.

Pass Christian, Miss., May 20, 1931. Present at the meeting were: Nativity Parish, Biloxi; St. John's Biloxi; St. Thomas Long Beach; St. Francis de Sales, Gulfport; The Girls Sodality, St. Paul's Parish, Biloxi; Holy Name Sodality, St. Paul's Parish; St. Joseph's, Bay St. Louis; St. Stanislaus, Bay St. Louis; St. Theresa's, Biloxi, was not represented.

The following resolution was passed: That each Sodality divide into groups of six or seven; appoint a captain of each group; this captain to notify each member of the group of the Communion days during the Summer months. Also that each captain keep a record of the number of communions—same to be submitted to the president or the director of the Sodality at a fitting time or at the end of the summer. The percentages should be made known by each Sodality at the first meeting of officers in September.

The following officers were elected: President, Leon Baquet of St. Stanislaus; Vice-President, Proxy for St. Joseph's, Bay St. Louis; Recording Secretary, Mary Ann of St. Stanislaus; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Josephine Wilkes, Biloxi; Treasurer, Miss Inez Dubois of Long Beach.

Father Fahey and Brother Edmund were asked to submit a Constitution and By-Laws for the Gulf Coast Union at the next meeting. A resolution of thanks was made to His Excellency the Bishop. Brother Edmund was asked to write this letter.

Meeting of the officers may be had on call through the Corresponding Secretary, during the summer months. Next meeting to be held in Gulfport.

SODALITY NOTES.

At the meeting Saturday May 23, the graduating officers thanked the boys for their splendid cooperation throughout the year and wished the newly elected officers the greatest success possible in the forth coming year.

During the meeting a discussion was brought up as to the boys living in New Orleans meeting the third Sunday of the month that we are home, and going to Communion in a body at the church of the Holy Name at Loyola; this was readily agreed to by all the boys from New Orleans. The way this will be worked is as follows: A boy will be named to take charge of a committee which will consist of ten boys, it is this boy's duty to see that all the boys on his committee are there to check up on how many attended Communion.

After mass the boys will go to a downtown restaurant and have breakfast, this will not only serve as a reunion of the Sodality but also will be a meeting of the old fellows from the school who are always a favorite with the St. Stanislaus boys.

These were the only topics brought up at the meeting so the meeting adjourned, after the discussion.

DREAM OF A LOWLY JUNIOR ON SEEING THE SENIORS GO PICNICKING.

Before I doze off to dreamland, let us discuss this being called a senior. What manner of animal is he? Why is he placed on a pedestal before the admiring eyes of lowly Freshmen and Sophomores? I supposed omit juniors, because I am a member of that highly-elevated Class, I place myself on an equal basis with that over-rated high-schooler.

In answer to the first question—I will let your imagination wander to undreamed of depths of lowliness, and above all let your conscience be your guide, but remember, you will never be able to under-rate him too much, he's just that low.

In answer to the second question—I will add another query—what is the difference between Senior and a Junior? My personal opinion is that the difference is a mere substitution of letters, the word Senior as defined in the Un-named dictionary, is but a derivation of the word Junior, the prefix Sen, in the "Believe-it-or-not-dictionary" means older, and in that same venerable the prefix Jun means young, so there is your connection. And, as every calendar knows, June is but a difference of four months from September, and what is five months, but 12½ more days to live, so every Junior, anyway you figure it, the Juniors are always on the top.

These reasons that I give you are responsible for my "unbiased" opinion, and that is why my good nature rankles; at the thought of a well-meaning but poorly donated picnic which was presented to the Seniors. I would have the Seniors to understand that it is not my purpose to under-rate or low-rate them in any way, far be it from me, but on the contrary, I wish to picture them in their true form, unadorned and unembellished, for I realize how precious their position is at present, as the session is on the wane and the Juniors will soon supercede them.

Delightful Picnic at Lakeshore by Class of S. S. C. Day School

Pupils of St. Stanislaus Day School, Bro. Andrew, principal, enjoyed Tuesday's picnic at Lakeshore when the faculty gave them an all-day picnic at Lakeshore beach, marking the close of a successful session. Bro. Andrew provided all kinds of amusement and entertainment for his charge and through the generosity of "silver donors" he was able to finance the outing to extent that practically nothing was lacking. Many games and with plenty to eat, prizes to the successful contestants, made for an unforgettable day. Bro. Andrew is thankful to all who assisted, especially to the Bay Furniture Company whose truck hauled chairs to and fro. In the late afternoon brothers from the college, and a number of friends visited the scene of the picnic and by their presence not only approved but added to the event and its significance.

CHILD FROM ALGIERS, LA., LOSES LIFE HERE IN AUTO CRASH SATURDAY

Betty Barnett Falls From Mother's Arms To Street When Alabama Car Coming From Auto Bridge Crashes—S. C. Wilson Arrested.

Betty Barnett, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Barnett of 325 Slidell avenue, Algiers, Louisiana, was instantly killed when the car in which she was sleeping while in her mother's arms was hit by another. The other car coming over the bridge crashed head first into the right front door of the Barnett car.

The car crashing into the New Orleans car was owned and driven by Swede C. Wilson, of Crichton, Ala., north of Mobile, en route to New Orleans. The Barnett car had just arrived from New Orleans and was driven by Mrs. Frank Lacour, an aunt of the child, and was passing the Bay St. Louis terminal of the bridge en route to the north end of the city, where it was planned to spend the week-end with relatives.

The child was thrown to the street when the car turned over and its head smashed by the compact. Blood covered the spot and the spectacle was ghastly. A porter from Hotel Weston saw the accident and reported it to Mrs. A. Bourgeois, hostess at the hotel, who rushed out and picked up the dead child and took it to the local undertaker, where it was prepared for burial to be taken to its home.

The funeral took place Sunday afternoon from the late residence in Algiers.

Mrs. Barnett was injured and given attention. Wilson and his wife were considerably injured and both taken to the King's Daughters Hospital, where Mrs. Wilson remained a few days and her husband was placed under arrest that night and held in default of $5000 bond. He was incarcerated in the county jail.

Both drivers, it is claimed, were passing under the green light, which is impossible and the responsibility remains undetermined. Wilson said, when arrested that he had no money at all and was in no position to give bond.

VISITING RESIDENT VOICES OPINION BEST FOR COAST SECTION

John T. Eastwood Tells Echo Reporter of Factors Essential For Further And Rapid Growth of Bay St. Louis.

"We are back in your delightful city and are glad to be here again," said Mr. John T. Eastwood, well known civil engineer of New Orleans, whose summer home on the North Beach Boulevard forms the setting for the family circle, composed of Mrs. Eastwood and their gentlemanly young son and Mrs. Eastwood's brother, Mr. Manning Cluverious.

"There are three essentials, however, that are lacking to the extent of being forcibly felt and retarding the more rapid and appreciable growth of your city.

"These are, first, the urgent necessity of gas for domestic purposes. It is surprising a community of this size and importance lacks so necessary a commodity in the daily lives of its people. Bay St. Louis invites people, offers many dwellings and apartments but one can hardly expect others to come here with domestic gas lacking. In this day gas is practically everywhere, people seek ideal places of residence and no one can reasonably be expected to leave a home thus equipped to come out here, even though many other advantages are preponderantly in favor of Bay St. Louis.

"Crossing the waters of Bay St. Louis is no engineering feat. With the new pipe joint the work would simply be dropping the pipe down through the water unto the floor or bottom of the Bay.

Roadway From New Orleans.

"Then there is the roadway from New Orleans to Bay St. Louis. That section of dangerous gravel road from the La-Miss. state line to Bay St. Louis should be surfaced by all means and thus not only remove a menace to life, but would give a roadway that would warrant and give ingress to this section of thousands of automobiles that do not come this way. In the absence of the proposed 'short cut' the New Orleans-Gulf Coast highway should be made in the best of possible condition and at the earliest moment. It is too vital a matter for further procrastination.

High Taxes Depreciated.

"High taxes stifle demand for real estate," continued Mr. Eastwood, talking to The Echo, "and of course there is no value since the demand is absent. I fully realize both country and city have been most generous in major improvements and that such things cost money whereby great bond issues must be negotiated and that since the tax-payers are beneficiaries from such acts that they in turn must pay for same. But the fact remains nevertheless our taxes are all out of proportion and until such readjustment is made we need not expect the return of property values and demand for same. A reduction in taxes would no doubt form the biggest improvement of all to our people. Spending the peoples money for so-called public improvements is not always the best and real improvement.

"I love your city and I want to live here. Its people are most cordial and many elements combined conspire to make it one of the best places to live in."

Mr. Eastwood was reminded that both country and city last year had derided both assessment and levy and that in time such graded reduction would bring about the desired end so ardently hoped for by every property owner.

Mr. Eastwood is consulting engineer at New Orleans Water Supply and Purification, Sewerage and Sewerage Disposal Design-Underground Layout-Arbitration.

Restless, could not sleep

"THERE were days when I felt like I could not get my work done. I would get so nervous and 'tremble' I would have to lie down. I was very restless, and could not sleep at night.

My mother advised me to take Cardui, and I certainly am glad she did. It is the first thing that seemed to give me any strength. I felt better after the first bottle. I kept it up and am now feeling fine."

TRIBUTE TO THE UNSUNG HEROES OF COMMUNITY

By JOHN T. MEYERS,
For The Sea Coast Echo.

The path of the acclaimed hero or genius in the different arts and accomplishments of life are lavishly strewn with honor, praise, and glory. A worshipping public seemingly bows with awe and reverence before him upon whom the revealing rays of recognition are focused.

Fate has ironically decreed that the legion of famous heroes and geniuses be limited. But it is out beyond the pale of the selected few that a vast and untiring army of heroes and geniuses carry on in everyday life. Their name or fame may not extend further than their city or community—possibly may even be limited to neighbors and friends. However, the role they play in life's program is as important in its scope as that of the world-acclaimed hero—even more so.

There is the community doctor—lovable friend and benefactor to suffering mankind—making personal sacrifices every day in practicing his noble profession.

World fame or riches could bring no greater joy and happiness to the heart of the good parish priest, than the love and reverence of his devoted flock—looking to him for spiritual counsel and guidance. The angelic sisters devoting their life's work to the heavenly Father, and inspiring their students toward higher ideals in educational and moral endeavors.

The devout brothers, too, as well as other sincere teachers in every department, loyally shaping the characters and destinies of those who will be the men and women of tomorrow. The trumpet of fame may not blow praises of their worth from the mountain tops, but the gratitude of their pupils and community must serve as their reward.

In his prescription department, the community druggist carefully and accurately compounds the drugs and medicines that are oftentimes needed to ward off diseases and suffering. Always he stands ready to serve his community in any emergency. The druggist does not hear the encouraging sound of applause—but his devotion to his profession urges him on—just another unsung hero, along with the rest.

Deeply pondering over his constructive editorial policy, and problem of presenting the news and current events, the community editor and publisher stands as eager sentinel—ever alert to better conditions in the section in which his paper is located. The real life drama chronicled upon his paper's pages are very real to this newspaperman. Faith and sincerity from his readers is his greatest reward.

There are renowned philanthropists who give millions to charitable causes. But the neighborhood 'god mother' who sits untiringly beside the sick-bed of a friend or neighbor, helps with the household duties, and keeps the pots boiling in times of stress is, in reality, due most honor and glory.

And always these smoldering flames of uncrowned glory continue to burn—making life brighter for fellow humans who come in contact with the deeds that are rendered, and the results accomplished. A peep into the everyday life of our fellow humans will reveal many heretofore unknown heroes and geniuses.
